

Rutgers Schools of Alcohol and Drug Studies • 2002

The Center of Alcohol Studies has been providing leadership in the education and training of professionals and policymakers since 1943 through its schools of alcohol and drug studies.

Each school is a comprehensive one-week program whose faculty are leaders in the alcohol and drug field. Participants enroll in specialized courses that provide an intensive immersion into their areas of interest, while lectures and seminars offer the opportunity to explore other topic areas.

Sixty years of experience have resulted in a balance of academic, social and non-structured time. The congenial atmosphere encourages interaction and networking among a student body that is geographically diverse and has a rich mixture of professional roles.

The schools for 2002 are being held on the College Avenue Campus of Rutgers University in New Brunswick, New Jersey, with convenient access via car, bus and train to New York City and Philadelphia. The school dates are:

School of Alcohol and Drug Studies
June 9 to June 14, 2002

Institute of Alcohol and Drug Studies
July 14 to July 19, 2002

Rutgers University grants 4.2 Continuing Education Units (CEUs), equivalent to 42 contact hours toward certification/recertification in most states, for each school.

Hours have been approved for CAC/CDC/CADC certification/recertification, and application has been made for Professional Development Hours for employee assistance counselors.

The Rutgers Schools of Alcohol and Drug Studies have been approved by the National Association of Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Counselors (NAADAC).
